

Scoring tickets

The most popular films will likely be sold out weeks in advance. But here's how to get tickets to the sold-out screenings at this year's festival. There's still a chance to get tickets at the Bell Light-box box office. Newly available tickets are released at 7 a.m. the day of the screening. True fans can also line up at the venue for a chance to grab some "rush" seats, which are released just 15 minutes before the screening, though be prepared to line up several hours earlier for popular shows. For additional ticket information, visit tiff.net. METRO
